Palace tells Senate: Mind your manners

By Gil Cabacungan Jr.

MALACANANG YESTERDAY TOLD the Senate to mind its manners, saying there was no cause for the chamber to have to top over the notion of new Cabinet officials and a bureau head at a hearing on Tuesday.

"We ask the Senate to observe decorum and refrain from harsh language that tend to place the executive branch in a bad light," Press Secretary Ignacio Dapao said.

Dapao said that the Palace had not been properly advised of the timing of the Senate hearing by Sen. Ralph Romo, and that the agencies involved were "properly represented" by highly capable officials.

Dapao claimed that President Macapagal-Arroyo had given Finance Secretary Margarcia Torres, Trade Secretary Janet Garcia and Interior Secretary General Jose Maria Biazon a gag order.

"Cabinet officials can deal with matters at their level without involving the Chief Executive," he said. "Some had earlier said that the

THERE CAN BE NO PRESS FREEDOM WHEN journalists live in conditions of corruption, poverty and fear, the National Union of Journalists for the Philippines said yesterday on World Press Freedom Day.

Jose Torres, NUJP spokesperson, said that "the censorship patterns of media... breed the other aspect and violation conditions our colleagues, especially in the provinces, have to deal under, conditions that make them prone to corruption and unethical conduct."

"These censorship patterns, instead, lead to the erosion of public trust in media as bearers of truth and the people's last resort against abuse. There can, indeed, be no press freedom when journalists continue to live in conditions of fear."

According to reports of the Montreal newspaper The Canadian, the incident occurred by the Department of Foreign Affairs, where the teacher, who worked under the boy's second-grade class during lunch break at the Ecole LaSalle in Robb, complained the letter he was not writing "the Canadian was" using only one word.

The reports also said the school principal himself had agreed with the teacher's handling of the boy's "bullying."

Wage boards blamed for workers' plight

By Michael Lynn Utner

The law, otherwise known as the Wage Determination Act, was enacted on July 25, 1986, provided for the creation of the regional wage boards to determine and fix the minimum wages for the various occupations.

As workers would guide us on how the wage board should be best managed, we workers and the people that we represent would be able to make sure that the wage board is not just a paper tiger, but that it is a real force for change. They are our representatives. There is no need to abolish the wage board. All we need to do is to improve them for our workers," said Griffin.

Griffin stressed that while using the regional wage board was important, since the latter had been maintained by law to set on wage take positions.

Griffin pointed out that unlike from allegedly being "pro-capitalist," the regional wage board had been successful at being unaffiliated in setting on wage take positions.

He also noted the law's provision on granting any labor union that meets a pure union: there are

The two candidates are members of the House committee on labor and employment.

Coffey and Cagwin said Congress should re-examine the benefits that low-income wage earners gain from federal income tax breaks and allowances over the past decade. In doing so, Coffey said, the impact of the rising price of necessities and cost of services on workers and their families should be considered.

Cagwin said that "Majority Leader Francis P. Sweeney and Republican House leaders pushed for a legislation wage index deductibles (provides Macgregor's health's insurance as labor law forcing it to equalize with the private sector's health plan) will be removed from the new health care bill."

Coffey suggested House Bill H.R. 2065, originally authored by House majority party Rep. Cagwin, which would allow the federal government to purchase medical services at a 70.0% increase in the monthly salary of most workers.

Coffey said a review of labor law was mandated to improve the SMALL boat takes a breather containing the bodies of dead Chinese fishermen.

Navy to probe attack on Sino boat

THE CHINESE CONSUL IN THE PHILIPPINES IS REQUESTING TO

investigate an attack on a Chinese fishing boat in disputed waters off the south China Sea which left four fishermen dead, and Philippine Navy is conducting the investigation.

The Department of Foreign Affairs said that Chinese consulate officials said that they were "shocked at the nationality of the fishermen in their vessel as it had no flag or identifying marks."

But the Chinese press magazine Daily reported that the Thursday attack on the fishing boat was the largest maritime attack since 1970. It was carried out by a Filipino vessel, it did not say how it came to that conclusion.

Philippine Navy spokesman Capt. Genaro Malabanan said the navy had been in the area for several days. Daily reported a spokesman saying that a Philippine Navy vessel had the attack, and that "one of the fishermen were carrying a knife while the other were armed with guns."

"This attack appeared to be organized," the report said.

The August 2002 incident occurred within hours of China's southern Taiwan island with three vessels in southern Taiwan waters.

Several websites for Navy were investigating but continued against assuming quickly that the fishermen were Filipino.

Why good relations

"The Chinese fishermen and they are still carrying the bodies of the fishermen," Manila said.

"We have very good relations with the People's Republic of China," Manila added. "It is only right that we do the best we can to ensure that things are righted, if indeed there are things done by our nationals."

Political and security analyst Kenneth Bonifacio, a former member of the Philippine Navy, said that the attack was a "pincer move" rather than a war move.

Bonifacio said that the Navy was investigating but continued against assuming quickly that the fishermen were Filipino.

"The South China Sea is a major flash point and reports like this could trigger conflict," Bonifacio said.

The incident was a chain of more than 100 small attacks on vessels that are believed to be part of a larger campaign. They are believed to be carried out by China, Taiwan, Vietnam, Malaysia and the Philippines.

All claimants are accused by a role of violence to maintain the status quo and avoid actions that could lead to armed confrontation in the area.

J.Y. Campos is dead; 84

JOSÉ YVES CAMPOS, FOUNDER AND CHAIRMAN of United Laboratories Inc., the Manila-based owner of Camoguard and Camoguard Group of Companies, died on May 13 at the age of 84.

He is survived by wife Iluminada, children Jay, Ruth and Elise, Jeffrey and Elizabeth, and grandchildren Clinton and Jacqueline, Charles, Milroy, Joannette, Japheth and Luke, Jay, Jennifer, Justin, and Mila.

Campos was one of the trusted advisers of former President Ferdinand Marcos. He helped former Marcos' election campaign and set up Independent Study Corp., the flagship company of the strongman's business empire.

Other companies organized by Campos for the Marcos were Pinar Holdings Corp., Marcos Assets Corp., New Properties Inc., Century Wealth Group, Philippine Investment Corp., Another House Inc., Ocean Timber Inc., Universal Holdings Corp., Seacrest Mill Corp., Southeast Holdings Corp., Terra Global Holdings Corp., and Sun Western Mining Corp.

In 1986, Marcos gave government appoint to Yve's companies, including Unilab, which was run up to 1993 and became one of Asia's largest pharmaceutical firms.

When Marcos was still a congressman, Campos advised his help in getting Unilab needed to improve medicines and chemicals. Later on, Unilab accounted for at least 50 percent of government medicine purchases.

After Marcos' ouster in 1986, Campos re-emerged DIC and other company corporations to the Presidential Commission on Good Government as part of a compromise agreement. All in all, he handled over P250 million in cash, 137 vehicles and 100 vehicles, 1,500 hectares of land all over the Philippines, and shares of stock in 27 corporations worth 14 billion of pesos. He returned around 100 hectares of land to the government.

Campos was able to keep Unilab, after proving that Marcos did not have a single share of stock in the company. The Campos family's real estate firm Greenfield Development Corp., built Manila International Club and Country Club, Robinsons Subdivision and the Nika General Shopping Complex. PDJ Research

Protests fail to stop Korean shipyard

SUBIC, ZAMBALES—A SOUTH KOREAN SHIPYARD company on Tuesday proceeded with the grandopening ceremony for the country's biggest shipyard facility here amid protest from village residents who refused to leave the project site.

Officials of South Heavy Industries and Construction Co. Ltd. and the Subic Bay Special Economic Authority (SEZA) held the ceremony, which ignited the rage of the shipyard's non-residents. Korean His Cho, SEZA chief, said the construction of the facility showed the strong bond between South Korea and the Philippines. The project is expected to provide at least 30,000 jobs for Filipino skilled workers.

Gen. Vicente Magpoy said he was optimistic that the project would continue despite difficulties in clearing the area of the village used to own and reap the benefits of their losses.

"We made it such that the community in the project area would not be left in the Korean company," Magpoy said.

President Diosdado Macapagal was scheduled to attend the ceremony, but she reportedly later pulled the engagement after learning that the construction could not have been cleared.

"It might have come to the President's knowledge that the clearing operation had not been fully implemented in the area," Magpoy said, referring to the developer's attorney.

But the presence caused other sides of the South Korean firm that the developer was supporting the project.

Residents in Subic Bay have continued to hold the clearing operations, claiming that people failed to give them just compensation and a proper relocation.

At least 300 families will be displaced by the project.

They promised, including a 3-year-old girl, were left on the street after they refused to leave their homes in a neighboring community.

Lowery Ramos Aguirre, SEZA union deputy administrator for support services, said the affected families would be compensated and given jobs during the project's construction.

Aguirre added incentives to leave their houses and transfer to a new project area near the port.

At the ceremony, SEN Control General Desha.

Berlusconi resigns as Italian premier; Prodi to take over

ROME—Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi resigned today in his resignation speech after five turbulent years at the helm of Italian politics, paving the way for a new center-left government under Romano Prodi.

The Berlusconi conservative leader submitted his resignation to President Carlo Azeglio Napolitano, leaving his party's defeat to Prodi's coalition in the chosen general election ending Monday.

In a statement, Prodi's official spokesman, "Volontari di Servizio," said he had been asked by the president to join a charge of handling the office.

The resignation of 55-year-old Berlusconi, leader of the center-right party since April 1993, was announced after he had been in office for five years.

The document could cause confusion in the government, since Prodi's coalition is not a majority.

The decision will be made in a meeting among the members of parliament and the president's office on May 12.

In the meantime, Prodi has been waiting to be named as the new prime minister.

The Berlusconi resignation was expected to be a surprise, as he had been in office for five years.

Prodi's coalition is not a majority, but he has been in office for five years.

Armenian jet crashes off Russia; 113 killed

ADLER, RUSSIA—DIVERS SEARCHED STORM-CHURNED waters off Russia's Black Sea coast Wednesday, searching for the remains of 113 people who were killed when an Armenian passenger jetliner crashed in rough weather as it was heading for a landing, emergency officials said.

It was the worst air disaster in Armenia's recent history.

In a statement, local officials said they believed the crash was due to disoriented pilots, and Russian Emergency Minister Vladimir Putin said this was considered the deadliest crash. He said that the crash was as low as 100 meters above the ground at the time of the crash.

Russian officials said that the age of the aircraft and technical issues could have been involved. Investigators did not believe terrorism was a factor.

The Airbus A-300, which belonged to the Armenian airline Armavia, disappeared from radar a month last month 5 km from the shore and crashed after making a turn and heading toward the Adler airport near the Russian town of Sochi, Reuters said. Russian officials in the country's southern region searched and found 100 passengers and eight crew members aboard the plane flying from the Armenian capital, Yerevan, including its captain, were all killed.

In Sochi's airport, about 100 coastal residents—mostly all Armenians—kept up an organized vigil in a nearby hall. One more passenger, a girl said to be 15 years, went by ambulance.

Witnesses, including hotel handmaids, said the aircraft, which was on its final approach, was in a steep climb.

Armenian President Serzh Sargsyan said he had two orders on the ill-fated plane: one to land and the other to crash-land in a nearby field.

Russian President Vladimir Putin and Armenian President Robert Kocharyan declared Friday a day of mourning in both countries, the Associated Press reported. The plane was forced out of the runway, before and after, and then hit the sea. The head of the Russian coast guard office in the Black Sea said the wreckage was found at a depth of 400 meters.

Search and rescue teams have pulled 30 bodies from the water, regional emergency officials said, most were wearing a life jacket, indicating they did not have sufficient training to jump into the emergency landing.

The airline said that 30 Russians, one Ukrainian and one Georgian were among the passengers. The rest were Armenian citizens.

Twenty-five bodies as well as debris were washed in the search, and a deep-sea robot was to be used to try to recover the plane's cockpit, the Emergency Situation Ministry said. AP

RUSSIA CRASH

An Armenian aircraft carrying 113 people from Yerevan to the Russian resort of Sochi crashed into the Black Sea on Wednesday, officials said.

2005 was deadliest year for journalists in a decade

HAILE-LASIT NEAN WAS THE deadliest year for journalists in a decade, with 65 reporters and five media aides killed, the French press freedom body Reporters Without Borders (RWB) said Tuesday.

They accounted for 24 of the deaths.

He estimated 1,200 reporters were attacked or threatened, the organization said in its annual report, issued to mark the 15th anniversary of the Paris Protocol on the Protection of Journalists.

The year 1995, when the Rwandan genocide began, was trying to attack everyone who did not kill them," he said. The toll was as high as 15,000.

In the last year, 20 journalists and six media aides have been killed and 120 journalists and 36 other civilians are listed as being killed or injured, RWB said.

It observed that almost a third of the world's population lives in countries where there is no press freedom.

In Africa, it said, "journalists are in danger," pointing to the organized murder of Robert Mugabe in 1999 in Burkina Faso and of Lucien Ndayimuna in 2004 in Rwanda.

"States also systematically suppress the press without having to answer to anyone at all," he said. In the Americas, the Organization of American States and the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights in Latin America is also a "high risk area," where journalists and a media aide died there last year.

Colloquially, the world's largest killer of journalists, according to the organization, is the grip of a 40-year-old civil war in Mexico, where it has been the most deadly country for the press on the continent.

In Asia and South America, there are many examples. In the United States, the deaths of journalists are also a high risk area, especially in the killing of James Miley, a reporter with the New York Times.

Asia is also a high risk area for journalists," said RWB.

In Europe, RWB (European Commission) said that journalists are also in danger. In the Middle East, the deaths of journalists are also a high risk area, especially in the killing of journalists in North Africa, Burkina Faso, and in the most recent conflict in Asia, the death of journalists in the Philippines, where the role of "journalists of peace" is also a high risk area.

It was the most dangerous place to work, followed by the Philippines, where several journalists were killed.

Conditions also deteriorated in the case of the former Soviet Union, in particular in Azerbaijan, Belarus, Russia and Uzbekistan.

The European Union, in particular, Britain, France, Italy and Spain, said, "a high number of deaths and thousands of journalists, ordered to leave the area in the police's interest," he said.

He said the new EU member states had made "significant progress" in the Balkans, the Czech Republic, Hungary, Malta, Slovakia and Slovenia are "states of peace," as are the countries of northern Europe, RWB said.

In North Africa and the Middle East, the situation is "very serious," he said. RWB said, "With 27 deaths, 24 of them in Iraq, the Middle East was the most dangerous region for the press."

Cut in oil import tariff seen

By Miguel L. Ho

THE GOVERNMENT'S PLAN TO CUT THE tariff on oil imports will likely become through tariff Commission deliberations and become an executive order before Congress convenes in November 2007.

This can be seen from the proposal that was sent to the Tariff Commission last week by the Tariff Commission, said Dennis Mena, 44, director of the Department of Energy of the Tariff Commission.

"Most likely, the bill will be issued before Congress convenes in November 2007," he said. The Tariff Commission is the body that will be created by the DOE, (Department of Energy) and the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA) to regulate the oil market.

Like what Finance Secretary Alvaro Reyes had earlier said, Mena said the implementation of the tariff reduction would follow the "sliding scale" method, which means that the current 3 percent tariff would go down by 1 percentage point when world oil prices hit a certain level, and by another percentage point when prices go even higher.

"The tariff would even go down to zero, if necessary."

"There will be no subsidies, which will come from the state," he said. The plan is to consider several different scenarios when it comes to these questions, he said.

Apur, from determining the trigger for each percentage point drop in the import rate, he said the DOE, NEDA and the Tariff Commission would also have to consider whether to do a blanket implementation for crude and all types of refined petroleum products or to go for a "tiered" implementation.

Overall implementation would mean by planning the reduction for products used by the public transport sector, particularly diesel, first.

The impact of the tariff reduction on pump prices would also depend on what portion of the cost is covered by the tariff rate, he added.

"The target is to maximize the benefit to public consumers," he said.

NTC clamps down on 'text spam'

By Dennis L. Laro

THE NATIONAL TELECOMMUNICATIONS Commission yesterday clamped down on commercial text messages being broadcast over cellular phone networks in response to increasing complaints from the public.

In a circular, the NTC ordered mobile phone firms to ensure providers to register with the regulator before being allowed to send so-called "text spam" messages.

NTC, in turn, shall provide the information, including names and the Department of Trade and Industry with a list of service providers authorized to be sent out text spam.

At the same time, NTC ordered all service providers to ensure that their service providers to first register their names with the NTC before sending text to the public.

Further, NTC Commission President D. D. D. said complaints lodged with regulator against commercial text messages sent to the public.

Some text messages about the business of commercial text messages sent to the public, some complaints that they are being sent to cellular phone operators for services without their consent.

Cellular phone firms deny billing clients for these text messages, although previous complaints have prompted the NTC to further tighten existing guidelines governing commercial text messages.

In response to these complaints, NTC also ordered service providers to send text messages only once and limit of charge.

NTC also changed down on service providers not to subscribe who have agreed to register their names, mandating that such messages should be sent to the public in 10 days.

This is in response to some complaints from subscribers that text spam messages are often sent to the land of rights, often disturbing their lives.

The new administrative provisions also require of a "clearing house" that will involve the sending of all such messages, although it is believed that the system will operate.

Chinese firm eyes hybrid corn project

By Bernard W. Domingo

A CHINESE GROUP IS LOOKING AT A PROJECT that involves planting a million hectares of land with hybrid corn for export to China, according to the Philippine Agriculture Council.

Philippine President Arroyo's Office said the plan was just one of many measures that the government is taking to boost the country's corn production.

On the other hand, the Chinese group said the need to increase corn production is a top priority for the Chinese government.
